

I am opposed to any changes to the current FCC indecency standards that would allow television and radio stations that would increase the broadcast of expletives, profanity, and/or sexual content that could include nudity on the public airwaves, even if these instances were brief or fleeting.

The Supreme Court has confirmed the FCC's authority to enforce current policies regarding language and sexual content, especially during times when children are likely to be watching or listening.

I believe there is a direct correlation between the things that we see and hear and our belief systems and actions. This is the reason companies and corporations spend billions of dollars every year on advertising their products.

We need more content that encourages showing respect, honor, and dignity toward others. Relaxing the current policy and standards would not serve the public interest and only feed attitudes, beliefs, and actions that ultimately increase disrespect, abuse, assault, and selfishness toward others, especially those who may be different than us.

I urge the FCC to reject any and all proposals that would allow for the increased broadcast of profanity, expletives, and/or sexual content that could include nudity on FCC-licensed stations.
